

1894.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

(REPORT FOR 1893.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Inspector-General of Police to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir, Police Department, Inspector-General's Office, Sydney, 11 January, 1894.

As the Police Estimates for the current year will shortly be under consideration by Parliament, I think it advisable not to delay the transmission of the annual statement of the strength and distribution of the constabulary, and to accompany it as usual with my report for the year 1893, as required by the Police Regulations, and the Chief Secretary's instructions.

During the year new stations have been formed at the places hereunder named :—

Towamba	Southern District.
Trundle	Western District.
Dudley...	North-Eastern District.
Burren...	North-Western District.
North Broken Hill	South-Western District.
Yerong Creek—Culcairn	Murray District.

The strength of the Police has also been increased in the Metropolitan District and at the following places :—Broken Hill, Grenfell, Newcastle, Campbelltown, Wilcannia, West Maitland, Warialda, Deniliquin, and Carrathool.

The station at Eulowrie was discontinued.

One hundred and thirty-eight appointments were made during the year to provide for the above increases, and to fill vacancies occasioned as under :—

Resignations	52
Discharges	28
Dismissals	13
Superannuations	16
Deaths	7

Eight Police pensioners died in 1893, who had been in receipt of pensions amounting in the aggregate to £850 1s. 8d. per annum.

Sixteen members of the Force of various ranks were superannuated during the year, ten receiving pensions at rates varying between £68 8s. 9d. and £500 per annum, amounting in all to £1,929 2s. 6d. per annum, and six were granted gratuities upon their discharge, which entailed a charge of £830 10s. upon the Fund.

A temporary pension of £68 8s. 9d. per annum lapsed during the year, and a gratuity of £112 10s. awarded as a final payment in lieu thereof.

Seven widows of members of the Force were awarded gratuities from the Police Reward Fund, amounting in all to £902 5s.

The condition of the Police Reward and Superannuation Funds becomes more unsatisfactory every year. The Treasury accounts show a balance on the combined funds of only £26,686 13s. 4d., after payment of the pensions, &c., up to the 31st December, £24,000 of that amount being investments, whilst in the year 1890 the investments to the credit of the funds amounted to £40,000, £16,000 having since been realised to meet the charges upon the fund in excess of the current income.

As there are many officers and men who must be superannuated in the near future, it will be necessary to take measures to place the funds on a permanently settled basis. Up to the present time the demands upon the funds have been met without any contribution from public moneys during the forty-two years it has been in operation.

The following figures have been taken from the station watch-house records in the Metropolitan District, and afford a general indication of the number of apprehensions for the year:—

Total number of arrests for the year 1893	23,344
" " 1892	22,317

There were 695 more apprehensions for drunkenness, simple or accompanied by disorderly conduct, than during the previous year.

No marked increase is shown in more serious crime with the exception of homicide (31 murders reported in 1893 against 12 in the previous year), and burglaries and robberies from dwellings, of which there were 2,119 cases as against 1,766 in 1892, the majority of course being thefts of property of small value.

Aggravated assaults and other outrages by the so called "larrikin" class have been of less frequent occurrence of late, which may be accounted for by certain special measures for their repression adopted by the police, but the advantages which would follow if the Bill before Parliament for the Suppression of Disorderly Conduct became law would without doubt work a still more marked reformation.

The following is a return of the prosecutions under the Licensing Act in the Metropolitan District during the year 1893, with the figures for the previous year in comparison :—

Year.	Sunday selling.	Other offences by licensees.	Persons leaving licensed premises with liquor during prohibited hours.	Persons drinking liquor in licensed premises during prohibited hours.	Persons selling liquor without holding a license.	Total.
1893	137	121	56	107	10	431
1892	148	153	54	115	25	495
Increase	2
Decrease	11	32	8	15	64

The gradual decrease in the number of licensed public-houses still continues, there being sixty-six licenses less issued in 1893 than in the previous year.

The Superintendent in charge of the Metropolitan District reports as follows regarding the operation of the Licensing Act:—"I have nothing new to report with regard to the operation of the Licensing Act. There have been about an average number of prosecutions for selling on Sundays and after hours, principally of licensees who have been comparatively only a short time in the trade, experienced publicans, from their extreme caution and watchfulness, being very difficult to detect. Violations of the Sunday-closing provision are quite as numerous as they ever were, and I see no prospect of diminishing the evil unless a penalty is provided for persons found on licensed premises without lawful excuse. The number of licensed houses in my district not having been materially reduced, and the impoverished circumstances of a large portion of the population leaving them but very little to expend in drink, many publicans find it difficult to pay their high rents and make a living. As an evidence that the public-house trade is not now generally a paying one, I may mention that during the year there have been over 400 transfers of licenses."

One thousand one hundred and thirty-two inquests were held on the bodies of deceased persons during the year, and in 107 cases death was found to be the result of intemperance.

One hundred and sixty-three inquests were held on fires, in which 74 were returned as "wilful," 72 accidental, and 17 not specified.

The extraneous duties undertaken by the police are on the increase. A large amount of work in connection with the Public Instruction Department has been imposed in dealing with truants, but I trust that by the police judiciously carrying out their instructions in advising parents who are neglectful in their duty to avail themselves of the advantages offered for their children's education that there will be an improvement in this respect and a corresponding decrease in the number of prosecutions.

The administration of the "Dairies Supervision Act" and the "Diseased Animals and Meat Act" has necessitated the employment of a large number of police to carry out the instructions of the Board of Health, but no other agency could be obtained without considerable expense, nor could the duties have been performed so efficiently otherwise.

Proceedings have been taken on behalf of the Public Instruction Department in 874 cases under the compulsory education clauses. Inquiries have also been conducted in 628 cases at the instance of the Master-in-Lunacy, 325 cases for the State Children's Relief and Government Asylum's Departments, and 106 cases on behalf of the Superintendent of the N.S.S. "Sobraon."

A large amount of travelling, and of office work in preparing returns and reports, is also involved by the police in carrying out duties for the Land Board Court, Aborigines Protection Board, the Government Statistician, and a number of other departments.

There have been 479 inquiries for missing friends during the year, out of which 223 persons have been discovered by the police.

Deducing

Deducing my information from annual reports furnished to me by chiefs of police of cities and states in other parts of the world, it is of interest to note that the system and discipline of police bodies is gradually assimilating in all civilised places, and further, that similar difficulties present themselves in all places in directing the operations of the police to the best public advantage, legislation on social matters being desired in many places to give the police more effective control.

As a natural result of this system of management and operation, it is found that there is prompt co-operation whenever it is found necessary to ask for information regarding criminal absconders, or upon other police matters, and I am glad to acknowledge the services rendered to me in this regard by the chiefs of police in other countries, which it is my endeavour at all times to reciprocate.

As regards provision for police station buildings, barracks, lock-ups, and other departmental matters, I believe New South Wales to be in advance of all other places.

The undermentioned works in connection with buildings have been completed during the year on behalf of the Department:—

Molong...	Additions to lock-up.
Murwillumbah...	Additions to court and watch house.
Germanton	Additions to lock-up.
Braidwood	Repairs, &c., to court and watch house.
Wentworth	Repairs, &c., to police-station.
Balranald	Erection of grill-yard at lock-up gaol.
Gunning	Additions, &c., to court and watch house.
Tamworth	Erection of lock-up.
Yerong Creek	do
Warialda	Erection of police barracks.
Sydney	The watch-house in Regent-street is approaching completion, to replace the building objectionably situated and badly constructed near Christ Church.

The occupation of the police barracks at the Central Police Station has proved very advantageous to the Service. An average of fifty single constables are quartered there, and, as the lodging allowance thus saved amounts to about £900 per annum, the rental thus represented is a handsome return for the moderate cost of the building. Superintendent Read reports that the management under Sergeant Mitchell has been excellent, there having been but very little friction, and absolutely no difficulty; and, as a result of the superior sanitary arrangements, the health of the inmates has, he thinks, been above the average. The advantage to the Service has been a more vigorous enforcement of necessary discipline among the junior members of the Force, and the constant readiness of a large body of men in the centre of the city for any emergency that might arise either by day or night. Several instances have already occurred showing the advantage of such an institution to the Service and the public.

The conduct of the police generally has been excellent, the number of dismissals lower than the average, and, judging by the numerous recommendations for promotion made by officers of the Department, magistrates, and other influential persons, many of the police must have performed their duties with exceptional efficiency.

I have, &c.,

EDMUND FOSBERY,

Inspector-General of Police.

RETURN of the Strength and Distribution of the Police Force on the 31st December, 1893.
